River Cats file to end relationship with Oakland A's – is possible match with Giants in store?

The River Cats have filed paperwork with Major League Baseball to end their affiliation with the Oakland A's.

The River Cats have served as the A's Triple-A team since they were bought by the late Art Savage and began play at Raley Field in West Sacramento in 2000.

As a Triple-A club, the team has been the top tier of the A's minor league program. It has led the Pacific Coast league in attendance numbers and won Triple-A championships in 2007 and 2008. In the just-ended 2014 season, the River Cats posted a winning season but failed to make the playoffs.

Although the River Cats do not have official permission from Major League Baseball to begin speaking to other franchises, various media reports say they may be a strong contender to become the new minor league team of the San Francisco Giants. Other teams may also be in the mix.

The San Jose Mercury News reports that the A's will have five options on where to move their own AAA team, with the new stadium at Nashville, Tennessee, a "heavy favorite." The Nashville Sounds were formerly affiliated with the Milwaukee Brewers.

A River Cats spokesman told the Sacramento Bee that a decision regarding a new affiliate could occur quickly – even by today – and that the team will keep its name even when affiliation changes.

'Tis the season for entertainment:

The West Sacramento riverfront is home to several big events in the next few weeks.

The first touches down this Saturday:

John Santos & the John Santos Sextet will perform a free concert of Afro-Latin influenced jazz music at 7 p.m. on Sat., Sept. 20, at Riverwalk Park (seating opens at 6). The concert will be held behind the ziggurat building at 707 3rd Street.

Santos is a five-time Grammy nominee.

The concert is presented by La Raza Galeria Posada and the City of West Sacramento Parks and Recreation Department.

The temporary big white tent in the Bridge District (north of the freeway in West Sacramento along the riverfront) held a lot of beer fans in last year's 'Sactoberfest.' The event returns in a couple of weeks.

Then there's TBD Fest, a three-day music festival from Oct. 3-5.

The event -- in former years held in Sacramenot as "Launch," will be centered at a new West Sacramento outdoor venue called "The Barn," near the Tower Bridge.

Headlining musicians include Blondie, Justice, Moby, Empire of the Sun, Dillon Francis, Explosions in the Sky and The War on Drugs.

Three-day general admission tickets are $159 while a VIP pass is $250. For information on single tickets and other details, visit www.tbdfest.com.

The event will include an "artisanal market" with local food, as well as yoga, fashion and amusement rides, making it "perfect for everyone from the seasoned festival-goer to a family looking for a fun weekend activity," promises its promoters.

And what's October without an Oktoberfest?

Beer, keg rolling and "worst tossing" are all on tap as Sactoberfest returns to West Sacramento's Bridge District October 10-12.

The three-day festival is expected to draw at least 8,500 visitors to celebrate the German tradition. There will be brews from both the old country and local breweries such as Sudwerk, Yolo Brewing Co., Bike Dog and Jackrabbit (the last three of which are in West Sacramento), served under a 22,000 square foot tent by waitresses in 'drindl' costumes. Local eateries such as Broderick Roadhouse will also be on hand, as will live music. The event will center at the new "Barn" outdoor structure, 951 Riverfront Street. Tickets start at $25 (more after Oct. 1).

Bridge replacement: public workshop & walk coming up

The cities of Sacramento and West Sacramento have plans to replace the 103-year old I Street Bridge with a "new low-level, neighborhood-friendly bridge upstream" that will "provide better access for bicycles and pedestrians, and serve motorists more efficiently," they report.

The project is entering "environmental assessment" phase.

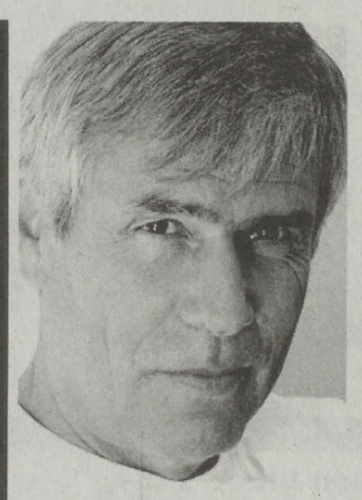
You're invited to an open house from 3:30-6:30 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 9, at the Stanford Gallery, 111 I Street in Sacramento.

The public workshop includes a 5:30 p.m. walking tour of about a mile on mostly-paved roads.

King Arthur learns what women want

Note: Daryl is off this week. Below is one of his favorite columns for the past.

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

King Arthur was a legendary king of medieval England and the main character in some of the most popular stories in world literature. For almost 1,000 years, writers and poets have told of Arthur's heroic deeds and the adventures of his brave Knights of the Round Table. In reality, a King Arthur probably did exist, but historians know very little about him. Storytellers passed along the earliest tales about him by word of mouth and may have based their stories on an actual British leader who won some minor victories over German invaders in the 500's (A.D.).

But no matter what the truth, King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table have always been wonderful characters for a good story, so even though the following one doesn't exactly qualify as high literature, I still consider it to be quite profound in its own little way, and definitely worth the telling:

Once upon a time, King Arthur was ambushed and imprisoned by the monarch of a neighboring kingdom. The monarch could have killed him, but was moved by Arthur's youth and idealism. So the monarch decided to mercifully offer Arthur his freedom, but only if he could answer a very hard question. And because of the question's great difficulty, he told Arthur he would give him a whole year to come up with a reply, but if after that period of time he still had no answer, then he would be forced to put him to death.

The question was, "What do women really want?"

Knowing that such a question would perplex even the most knowledgeable of men, young Arthur thought it an almost impossible task, but since it was better than death, he accepted the monarch's proposition to have an answer for him by year's end.

Because Arthur was known throughout the land as a man who would keep his word, he was allowed to return to his kingdom and he immediately began to poll everyone around him; the princess, the priests, the wise men, even the court jester. He spoke with everyone he could think of, both male and female, but no one seemed to be able to give him a satisfactory answer.

A number of those at court advised Arthur to consult a local old witch, saying that only she would know the answer. The price would be high, though, they warned him, as the witch was famous for the exorbitant prices she charged for her insights into the human condition. Finally, as the last day of the year approached, and with still no answer in hand, Arthur had no alternative but to talk to the old witch.

She agreed to answer the question, but only if Arthur would accept her price first. The old witch was very lonely and wanted to marry a handsome young man named Gawain, the most notable of the Knights of the Round Table, and Arthur's best friend.

Arthur was horrified by the request, as the witch was pockmarked and hideous, had only one tooth, smelled like sewage, and often made obscene noises for no particularly good reason. In fact, Arthur had never encountered such a repugnant creature in his whole life and he refused to force his good friend to marry her and have to endure such an awful burden.

Gawain, however, upon learning of the proposal, decided to have a talk with Arthur. He told him that nothing was too big a sacrifice compared to the loss of Arthur's life and the preservation of the Round Table.

"I will gladly marry, her, my Lord," Gawain bravely told Arthur, and as soon as the wedding was proclaimed, the old witch immediately answered Arthur's question thus: "What a woman really wants...is simply to be in charge of her own life."

Everyone instantly knew that the witch had uttered a great truth and that Arthur's life would be spared. And so it was, as the neighboring monarch soon granted Arthur his total freedom.

And what a wedding Gawain and the old witch had. But Arthur was torn between relief and anguish. Gawain was proper as always, gentle, thoughtful and courteous. However, the old witch put her worst manners on display and generally made everyone feel very uncomfortable.

Then the fateful hour arrived. Gawain, steeling himself for a horrible experience, finally entered the marriage bedroom. But what a sight awaited him! There in front of him was the most beautiful woman he had ever seen! The astounded Gawain asked her what in the world had happened? The beauty replied that since he had been so kind to her when she had appeared as a witch, she would henceforth be her horrible, deformed self only half the time, and the other half, she would be her beautiful young maiden self.

> Arthur was horrified by the request, as the witch was pockmarked and hideous, had only one tooth, smelled like sewage, and often made obscene noises for no particularly good reason. . .

"So, which would you want me to be during the day, and which during the night?" she asked Gawain with interest.

"What a cruel question," answered Gawain as he pondered his predicament. During the day, he thought to himself, I would have a beautiful woman to show off to my friends, but at night, in the privacy of my home, I would have an old witch. Or I could have a hideous witch by day and a beautiful lover at night with whom I could enjoy many intimate moments.

Noble Gawain finally took a deep breath, recalled the answer to the question that had spared King Arthur's life, and replied, "I wish you to choose for yourself."

Upon hearing this, the woman smiled warmly and announced, "Then I choose to be beautiful all the time for you, because unlike the other men I have known, you have respected me enough to let me be in charge of my own life."

So, you may ask, is there an actual moral to this little story? Well, of course there is, and it goes a little something like this:

If a woman doesn't get her own way, things can get pretty darn ugly!

was $721,636,091; an all-time high and an increase of 12.89% from 2012.

"These production figures reflect an overall higher price per unit for commodities and increases in acreage," said Yolo County Agricultural Commissioner John Young in a press release. "Field labor, processing, transporting, marketing and other farm-related services significantly multiply the value agriculture has to our county."

Processing tomatoes remain Yolo County's leading commodity with a gross value of $107,880,514, down from $111,566,739 in 2012. Although harvested acres were fewer than in 2012, the commodity increased in value due to a slightly increased price for the 2013 cropping season.

Wine grapes, almonds, rice and walnuts are in the top five commodities according to gross value, with wine grapes holding the number two position ahead of almonds. Almonds edged into third position in gross value ahead of rice. The gross value of organic production increased to just over $60,000,000 keeping it in sixth place for 2013. Alfalfa hay, sunflower seed, field corn and wheat round out the top ten commodities for 2013.

For more information on the acreage, production and gross valuation of agricultural commodities produced in Yolo County in 2013, visit: www.yolocounty.org/ag or contact the Yolo County Agriculture Department at (530) 666-8140.

Letter to the Editor

The police & Southport

I have been a Bridgeway Island resident since 2001.

I have noticed over the years that West Sac Police Department officers patrol Southport Parkway frequently to catch speeders. This occurs, from my experience, during daylight/commute hours such that those who may be caught speeding are working adults or students commuting to and from daily responsibilities. The safety of the residents doesn't appear to be at risk during these hours.

There are those that believe the officers patrol during periods where residents who can afford to pay the fines for the distributed tickets are traveling on this stretch of roadway. Still others state that the police department has to make money in some fashion so this is the easiest and fastest method in which to accomplish this.

My issue is this: officers would be better served, as would the residents of both Bridgeway Island and Bridgeway Lakes, if they were patrolling these areas after-hours. This is when the street racing, the "peeling-out," tagging with graffiti and accidents where vehicles have crossed the center divide on Southport Parkway ripping out the established trees has occurred over the years.

Many nights, as I lay in bed, I can hear cars screeching around the neighborhood. I would like to be able to report them to the Police Department, however, such activities are hard to pin point as the sounds travel making it difficult to identify from where they may be coming.

Just recently, there was graffiti on the retaining walls of a Bridgeway Island community. One wonders if this would have occurred had the officers been patrolling during the late night hours. I realize there are other areas in West Sacramento in the late night hours which require almost constant patrol. There is no question that there should be focus in these areas.

I don't agree with the mindset that the police department is only patrolling these areas to make money, but I do take issue with the timing of some of the patrols. As a longtime resident of the Bridgeway Island community, I would hope the West Sacramento Police Department would, in the best interest of the residents, review such practices and determine how best to improve the safety of these residents.

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS

BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Transformers: Age of Extinction" (PG-13) -- Michael Bay returns to the bang-bang-kaboom style of filmmaking with this fourth installment of the toy-inspired blockbuster series. Mark Wahlberg (Shia Labeouf is nowhere to be seen) plays a hardworking inventor in rural Texas. He finds a truck that is more than meets the eye. He also has a very pretty teenage daughter who is fond of jean shorts (Nicola Peltz). Did I mention that Optimus Prime charges into battle mounted on a robot T-Rex and wielding a giant sword?

Since it's the fourth movie in a series about explosions, you'd think there would be little left to say. Bay didn't think so: This one clocks in at almost three hours of run time. Most folks don't have the fortitude and focus to hang with the Autobots for that long.

Scarlett Johanssen in 'Chef'

"Chef" (R) -- Carl Casper (Jon Favreau) wants to bring real flavor into the menu at the upper-crust Los Angeles restaurant where he's a chef. His stubborn and suffocating boss (Dustin Hoffman) won't let the creative juices flow. After a conflict that boils over onto Twitter, Carl calls it quits with the restaurant. Upset, unemployed and reviled in LA, he takes his friend (John Leguizamo) back to Miami with him to start all over at the street-level: selling fresh fare from a junky old food truck.

The movie pours on the heart and humor, garnishes it with a good soundtrack, and serves it up with an appealing cast: Sofia Vergara, Scarlett Johanssen, plus appearances by Oliver Platt and Robert Downey Jr. Some have complained that the final product is too sweet, but it's a refreshing and invigorating meal nonetheless, especially for those of us who just really like food.

"Are You Here" (R) -- A smarmy, easygoing local weatherman, Steve (Owen Wilson), is a bit of a jerk but a very loyal friend. His best bud, Ben (Zach Galifinakis), has real psychological issues, and Steve's always there for him. When Ben's father dies, he leaves the bulk of his estate to Ben, much to the chagrin of his uptight sister (Amy Poehler). Ben has to prove to the courts that he has the mental togetherness to keep his inheritance, and everybody else has to face who they really are. This is the second movie from Matthew Weiner, the creator of TV's acclaimed "Mad Men." Unfortunately, this film lacks the sensibilities and allure that make Weiner's TV endeavor so sharp.

"Third Person" (R) -- Liam Neeson stars as a wounded and somber author trying to deal with his problems through layers of fiction. He's just one of a crowd of big names playing sad characters with vaguely intersecting lives. Olivia Wilde plays his wild young love interest, Kim Basinger plays his cynical ex-wife, and then there's Mila Kunis and James Franco in separate storylines in different cities. Some thematic threads (sort of) connect the characters, but it's not enough to make you think or feel anything special about what's going on. You get the feeling that with all the melodrama scattered through the script, the movie was too depressed to get its act together.

Reviewed by Larry Cox

Two new books are aimed at keeping home bakers and crochet enthusiasts busy this autumn.

"Smart Cookie," by Phoenix-based writer and photographer Christi Farr Johnstone, sets out to show that baking doesn't have to be a chore. To prove her point, she features recipes using store-bought ingredients such as graham crackers, icing, sprinkles, nuts and candy to create 50 visually appealing treats. Best of all, most take less time in the kitchen than making a batch of cupcakes.

This nifty cookbook is divided into six distinct chapters: The Great Outdoors; Desserts in Disguise; Happy Holidays; Celebrate Good Times; Child's Play; and Cute Creatures. There are formulas for metric conversions, a list of resources and even a getting-started section for novice cooks.

The recipes are fairly simple and focus on the fun part of making decorating cookies.

Hello Kitty is a fictional character produced in 1974 by the Japanese company of Sanrio and designed by Yuko Shimizu. Within two years, the creature had invaded American shores and presently generates over $6 billion in annual sales internationally.

"Hello Kitty Crochet: Supercute Amigurumi Patterns for Sanrio Friends" marks the 40th anniversary of Hello Kitty with a collection of easy-to-follow patterns for amigurumi, or Japanese knitted dolls. Whether you are an old hand or just learning how to crochet, this guide is certain to please and entertain, even those who think they have no craft skills. "Hello Kitty Crochet" is written by Mei Li Lee, a Malaysia-based blogger and crafter.

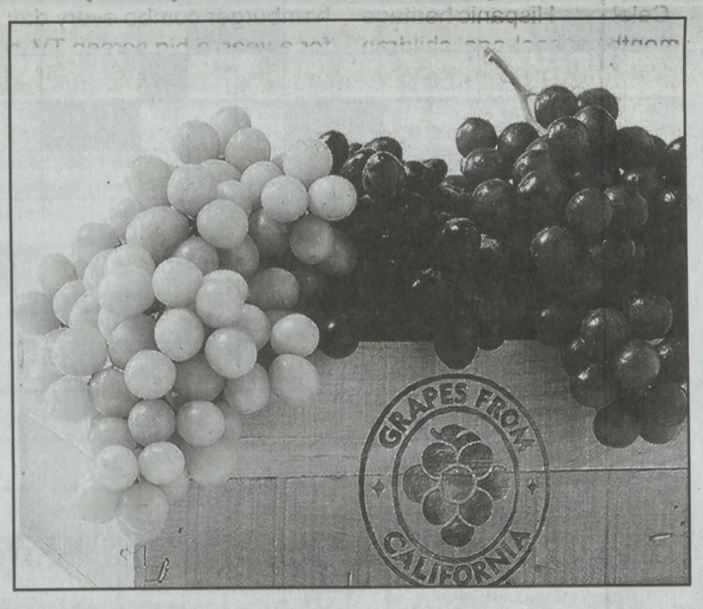
The Kitchen Diva

BY Angela Shelf Medearis

Fruit of the Vine



If you were to make a checklist of all the wonderful qualities one fruit could possess -- sweet, tart, tasty raw or cooked, fresh or dried, with delicious juice, various flavors, edible leaves and nutritious oil -- the grape and its vine would check every box. It must be for that reason that no other fruit, no matter how glamorous its reputation, is grown and produced as much as the grape.

The cultivation of grapes dates back to the beginning of civilization on the Asian and European continents. In North America, when the Europeans arrived, they found almost countless varieties of wild grapes, many found nowhere else in the world. Most of those wild grapes were considered inedible by the early colonists, although they were an elemental food of the Native Americans. Soon, however, the wild American grapes became hybridized with European varieties, and grapes became more widely consumed. One of the notable varieties is the super-delicious Concord grape.

The grapevine has a presence around the globe, and the fruit and the plant are used in a wide variety of ways. From the beginning, wine was made from grapes, but it wasn't long before it was discovered that grapes were wonderful dried, and there is even mention of raisins in the Bible.

The practice of making oil from the seeds also is ancient and appears to have begun soon after cultivation began. The same is true for the leaves, which are eaten fresh or brined, and a version of stuffed grape leaves not only is integral to Greek cuisine, but found in the foods of almost every Middle Eastern country.

The fruit itself is a good source of vitamins A and C, and antioxidants. The leaves are especially high in vitamin A and minerals, while the oil or extract from the seeds also contain antioxidants that may be helpful in lowering cholesterol and fighting heart disease.

Keep grapes in the coldest part of the refrigerator wrapped in a perforated plastic bag to allow excess moisture to escape. Unfortunately, grapes won't ripen after they've been picked.

When it comes to cooking with grapes, most people think of jams or pies, but even sweet grapes add an interesting dimension of flavor to savory dishes, and the more bitter grapes, such as some of the wild varieties like the Texas Muscadine, take on a sweetness when sauteed or roasted. If you've never tried grape leaves, you are missing a tangy treat. They are the perfect receptacle for a wide variety of stuffings.

Try this recipe for Bacon Seared Pork Chops with Grape Sauce, which uses grapes in a uniquely savory way!

SEARED PORK CHOPS WITH GRAPE SAUCE

1 teaspoon Kosher salt
1 teaspoon black pepper
1 tablespoon poultry seasoning
4 pork chops, bone out, 1 1/2 inches thick
2 strips bacon, cut into small pieces
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
2 cups seedless red grapes
2 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 cups low-sodium chicken stock
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon butter
3 tablespoons chopped green onions, white and green parts, for garnish

1. Season chops on both sides with salt, pepper and 1/2 tablespoon of poultry seasoning, and let sit outside refrigerator for 10 to 15 minutes to to come to room temperature.

2. Add bacon and 1 tablespoon oil to saute pan, and cook over medium-high heat. Once bacon starts to render some fat, about 2 minutes, add grapes. Allow the bacon to continue to render and get crispy, and the grapes to split open and release their juices, about 3 to 5 minutes. Remove half of bacon and grapes and set aside.

3. Add flour and the remaining 1/2 tablespoon poultry seasoning to bacon fat; stir for 1 to 2 minutes. Stir in chicken stock and Worcestershire sauce. Turn temperature to high, and bring the mixture to boil. Turn heat to simmer, stirring occasionally, until liquid is reduced by half and thickens. Stir in butter, cover pan, and set aside.

4. To a cast-iron pan, add remaining 2 tablespoons olive oil and heat over medium-high heat. Add seasoned pork chops and sear. Cook pork for 6 to 7 minutes on the first side. Flip over and reduce heat. Cook for another 6 to 7 minutes until cooked through. Remove pork from the pan, and allow to rest for about 5 minutes prior to serving.

5. When ready to serve, add reserved grapes and bacon to sauce. Taste and re-season if needed with additional salt and poultry seasoning. Pour over the chops and garnish with green onions. Makes 4 servings.

The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom). Use only the numbers below the diagram to complete its blank squares and use each of the nine numbers only once.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call, 1-800-280-2832 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this Internet Web site, www.auction.com, for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case, T.S.# 9448-5497. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. Bees, plants & solar: free educational workshops on tap

By Mary K. Hanson
Tuleyome

Tuleyome's "Nature and You" lecture series, in partnership with the Yolo County Library, continues with lecture through November of this year before starting again in 2015.

All of the lectures will take place at the Mary L. Stephens Davis Branch Library, 315 E. 14th Street, Davis, CA 95616, from 6:30 to 8:00 pm, and are free to the public.

Thursday, September 25, 2014: Topic: Honey Bees and the Haven. Christine Casey, the Manager of the Häagen-Dazs Honey Bee Haven will talk about honey bees, native bees, pollinator gardening, and what the Haven has been up to lately.

The haven is a half-acre "bee-friendly" garden on the UC Davis campus that's open to visitors and offers guided tours.

Thursday, October 23, 2014: Topic: What Does a Plant Taxonomist Do? Dr. Ellen Dean is the speaker. She is a plant taxonomist with over 20 years of experience teaching students at all levels the basics of keying and identifying plants. She has created numerous one- or two-day workshops for the general public, is in charge of outreach events for the Center for Plant Diversity herbarium, and has taught plant identification to undergraduates at UC Berkeley and UC Davis. She will be talking about what a plant taxonomist does, what she enjoys about her job, and the road she traveled to the herbarium at UC Davis.

Thursday, November 20, 2014: Topic: Solar Power for Everyone. Rebekah Casey, the Development Officer with GRID Alternatives North Valley, be speaking on the subject of solar energy and what GRID does for the communities in the region. GRID Alternatives helps low-income families save money while bringing clean solar energy onto the grid, and providing volunteers and job seekers with hands-on experience in solar.

The "Nature and You" series focuses on nature (including the earth-sciences, the environment and conservation, clean water, climate change, etc.). Piggy-backing on the nationally acclaimed STEM program, which encourages young people to enter into the educational fields of science, technology, engineering and math, the lecture series this year features female speakers: strong models of women in the scientific and academic fields.

Although some of the subject matter may sound very "technical", all lectures are provided in an easy-to-understand format, and time will be allowed for questions and answers after each talk. Families, seniors, youth groups and women's group are all invited to attend.

RSVP's are recommended although walk-ins are welcome. For more information about the series and upcoming topics and speakers, see the Tuleyome website at www.tuleyome.org or email mhanson@tuleyome.org. RSVPs are also accepted through Tuleyome's Meet Up site at http://www.meetup.com/Tuleyome-Home-Place-Adventures/.

Tuleyome is a nonprofit conservation organization with offices in Napa and Woodland, CA. Mary K. Hanson is an amateur naturalist and photographer who is the author of "The Chubby Woman's Walkabout" blog. For more information about Tuleyome, go to www.tuleyome.org.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (916) 939-0772 or visit this Internet Web site www.nationwideposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case 14-0880-11. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.
